Narrow Man Backs Notions by Significant Movement Toward Stenepile.

Intolerant Are Dominated by the Spirit of Those Who Assailed Christ.

Taking as his text the words of John x., 31: "The Jews took up stones again to stone him," the Rev. Benjamin Young, at the First M. E. church, last night preached on the subject, "The Reign of the Bigot." He said, in part:

"A stone is a striking argument. There is a kind of reserve power in a rock pile. heap of stones, with a few expert throwers, constitutes a battery dangerous to any advocate. A reformer once told e how insignificant he felt when, in an attempt to solve an ethical problem for the benefit of a mob, he was struck full the breast with an odoriferous egg. Any advocate who can stand serenely amid a shower of brickbats, and so forth, ought certainly to be the champion of a great principle.

Bigot Still With Us.

Bigot Still With Us.

"Every system must have a defense. Something is said for overy vagary of the human mind. Logic is used to support and to build up many a bad system. The Master had been endeavoring to impress a group of people with the fact that, in an important sense, he was related to the Father. His argument is incontrovertible. They cannot overcome his speech, so they call him hard names. They gnash their teeth with rage. They pick up stones to stone him again. This was not the first time that he had been threatened. There was never such a reformer as Jesus. He was a teacher of masterful power. His system was simple and intelligible. The elaborate mechanism of Judalsm was endangered. The priests and scribes would lose their grip upon the masses if the ideas of this teacher were to prevail. They are interested in the perpetuation of the prevalent system. They cannot refute the arguments of the Nazarene. However, they are ready to drive him out by brute force. They will stone him. They used the arguments of bigotry. The strength of these Jews at the time of Christ illustrates the reign of the bigot. Bigotry and truth are seen here in vigorous conflict. They were thus seen before that time and have been seen in such relation to each other often since. The reign of the bigot has not yet passed away.

"It is almost foolish to argue with a narrow-minded man. A fanatic will always get the best of you. He will appear to that which you will secon. He will profess an interior light which you will know nothing about. He will arrogate to himself superior powers. He will aggravate you by his assertions and anger you by his lillogical somersaults. The spirit of these men who took up stones to stone the Christ has cursed the world and impeded progress.

Foe of Thought. "Bigotry is the foe of thought. In the earlier history of civilization, in very many instances the men who dared to express some new truth were driven into exile. It is a hard thing to break off habit. This is the testimony of all nature. We hate to turn out of the road. This is true mentally. Certain mental habits color thought fabric and often mar it. To put new ideas into our brains is like dropping a piece of steel into the smooth-running cogs of delicate machinery. We cry heresy because it hurts our thinking processes. Anaxagoras startled the early Greeks so 'they took up stores. cry heresy because it hurts our thinking processes. Anaxagoras startled the early Greeks so 'they took up stones to stone him.' Protagoras, the sophist, said some strange things to these same people and they did not like it. They banished him and then burned his writings in the market place. Athens had no use for Socrates, so they put the hemiock to his lips. Occasionally you hear an infidel talk as though religion were the father of all superstition and bigotry in the 'world. Very likely he will cite you to the book of Joshua and mention Galileo. But he forgets that Aristarchus taught in Samos long ago a system of astronomy like the system of Copernicus, and that he was the great scientist of the day in Alexandria, and he was not a Christian, who stamped the theory as implous. The church, unfortunately, took her cue from this pseudo-science and was led into grievous error in the Middle Ages.

Wrongs Done in Name of Piety.

Wrongs Done in Name of Piety.

"In the name of plety great wrongs have often been done. But the spirit of narrowness seems to crop up in different places and to show itself in varied aspects. It would put shackles on thought. It would put shackles on thought. It would put shackles on thought. It would burn libraries and make the world a huge sepulchre. It is the enemy of progress. It was true of the incident from which the text is taken. Bigotry blocked the progress of reform in that day, it often does the same today. When one said the earth was not the center of our system, bigotry took up stones to stone him. When Newton advanced the theory of gravitation, bigotry said Newton was an atheist and a fool; that he would better attend to his own business and not go prying into the mysteries which God has put about the mysteries which God has put about the The work of the bigot is seen almost everywhere. Want a Chinese Wall.

Want a Chinese Wall.

"The bigot would pre-empt some domain and surround himself with a sort of a Chinese wall and thus keep out the alien. But this is not helpful to progress, and it is ever an obstacle to true religion. It is not representative of the spirit of religion. Our Lord was above it. He gave to the apostles the loftlest ideal. Paul was intense, but never intolerant. Of course, he was bitter against sin, and every Christian ought to copy after him in this respect. God help us to have breadth to be above bigotry. To be narrow and little and mean and intolerant is to be dominated by the spirit of those who took up stones to stone the Christ."

SECRET OF A HAPPY HOME.

One Real Cause of All Unhappiness Is Sin.

Rev. Overn of Our Savior's church yesterday morning discoursed on what constitutes a happy home. In his introductory remarks the pastor pointed out the many unhappy homes about us, to which the numerous divorce suits testify, and asked the cause of all this domestic unhappiness; to which he replied that many causes might be given, but that in reality there is but one cause. The one real cause of all unthe bottom of all trouble, and unless we learn to overcome sin we can never be truly happy. There is but one efficient remedy against sin, and that is the blood of Jesus Christ; there is no other remedy that will cure this trou-ble. Here are the three grand pillars upon which a truly happy home is built. and there can be no happy home with-out them—the mercy, blessing and guidance of our Father in heaven.

Harry R. Fulton, son of Dr. and Mrs. P. S. Keogh, died yesterday evening at the Keogh-Wright hospital, of typhoid fever, after an illness of but one week's duration. The young man was very popular in Salt Lake, and his sudden and early death is a great shock to his many friends and former schoolmates.

He was 22 years of age and was said to have very bright prospects. He was a graduate of the high school and formerly a member of the Utah National Guard and the Garfield Lyceum.

Mr. Fulton returned last May from Baltimore, where he was studying medicine, to spend his vacation with his parents in Sait Lake, and was on the point of returning East when he was taken sick with typhoid fever, with fatal results. The funeral notice will be published later. The first case of smallpox reported to the authorities in three months in lo-cated at 277 C street, Clarence Horn, the oleven-year-old son of Thomas A. Apostic Reed Smoot was one of the peakers at the conference of the Mor-non church yesterday morning, which rowded the Tabernacle, and overflowed the grounds. His address was principally on the patronage of home industry, especially of the Provo woolen mills, in which he is largely interested. He also recommended the encouragement of home industries in which to place the young people of Utah who are now idle.

Kimball Talks Politics.

Golden Kimball's speech at the Assembly hall in the afternoon, in which he talked concerning politics as well as religion, was filled with statements which caused considerable comment, and which seemed to meet with the approbation of the congregation, who guve most interested attention. He said among other things that Mormons who do not work for church interests will never make good Democrats or good Republicans, but should stick to their own party. No explanation of the last part of the statement was vouchsafed. He also said that he had never been subjected to church advice in anything.

"There is no place on earth where a more hospitable, kinder people can be found than in the South. During my stay there we have had some thirteen elders labor in the South. They have taken their grips and slept where night overtook them. They would go to the house where the elders could see it was washday and would say to the lady of the house that they were ministers of the house that they were ministers of the gospel and without purse or scrip, were preaching the gospel as Christ com-manded, and humbly asked whether they could wash their linen for them, and in this way they had their laundry done."

Trials of Missionaries.

He also spoke at length of the trouble who were sent home, and of their reluc-tance to go home for fear of criticism from their own people on account of hav-ing not served out their term as mis-

President Joseph F. Smith followed with a statement to the effect that the instructions to guard carefully the health of all elders laboring under their direction and to send them to their home when ill health or other conditions make it advisable to do so. He said that those who go on missions in the future need have no fear of criticism if their health will not permit them to fill a two or three years' mission abroad.

President Asa Woodruff gave an account of the work in the Northern States mission, where he labored for thirty-two months and had just been relieved. He spoke of the acquiring of church property in the city of Chicago, of their street meetings and of the Utah people who came to Chicago with the cattle and sheep and who seldom looked up their church while there.

Apostle Smoot's Address.

"It gives me great pleasure, my dear brothers and sisters, to have the privilege of speaking a few minutes to this vast congregation of Latter-day Saints, and I am proud indeed as a member of this church to hear the reports that have been given this morning, the testimony forme by three of the presidents of our different missions and to partake of that spirit of good which they possess. I know they are men of God, I know they are interested in your sons; I know they are interested in the great-work of the latter day. I know that they are filled with the spirit of God.
"Our enemies would very much appre-

"Our enemies would very much appreciate the fact, if it were true, that many of our young people were ashamed of the gospel of Josus Christ; but through my travels in this State, in the different parts where our people are, in coming in contact with the young people in our meetings. I can testify to you that ing in contact with the young people in our meetings, I can testify to you that it is far different from that, and that, in-stead of being asbamed of the great work and the cause they represent, they are proud of the fact that they are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and they are proud of their fathers and of their mothers.

Not Ashamed of Religion.

Not Ashamed of Religion.

"I am not ashamed of the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, for I know that it is the power of God unto salvation; and I hope that I never will live long enough to be ashamed of it, or ashamed of the devotion that my father and mother gave to this work, and I only hope and trust that I shall have the same fidelity, that same love, that same confidence in the work of God that they did. That I shall at all times have the spirit of God sufficient that, If it became necessary, I would give all on earth for its advancement, as I know that the father and mother would have given any minute after they were baptized in this church.

"While I see the prosperity on all

"While I see the prosperity on all hands and thank our Heavenly Father that our people are so well provided for with comfortable homes, happy surroundings, loving children; and while I know, my brothers and sisters, that there is very little suffering among the Saints of God in this land, as I traveled from one end of the State to the other in different localities I can plainly see that there are many natural advantages that are not taken hold of by our people.

Advantages Not II-lied

Advantages Not Utilized.

"At the earnest request of the presidency of the St. George stake of Zion, I took a trip recently through that stake for the purpose of seeing if the conditions were ripe, or if they were favorable for the establishment again of an industry whereby the clothing for the southern people could be manufactured. We have an emblem of the bos-hive, which means industry, saving, gathering for future help and need, and while, my brethren and sisters, this great principle to make what you wear, raise what you eat, in years past when that great captain of home manufacture taught it so strongly from one end of our Siate to the other, you can go into all these different communities and you will find there the marks of the teachings of years past, and I am sorry to say that in this State of ours almost every woolen mill in it, with the exception of one or two, is closed today. The mentinery is lying idle, not only idle, but it is going to rack and ruin. While on the other hand we can go into the different counties of Utah and we can see thousands of carlonds of fruit rotting and going to waste.

Lack of Brotherly Confidence.

"Why, it seems to me, my brothers and sisters, that we are neglecting one of the great cardinal principles of prosperity that used to be taught to us by President Brigham Young and all his successors. The trouble, my brothers and sisters, is that we have been foregoing one great principle that we were taught in the early history of this State, and that is co-operation. And why are we doing it? I rather think that one of the causes is that we have lost confidence in one another; that we don't like to put our money in with our brothers; and perhaps the reason is that there have been a few fallures in these undertakings. But I believe today that, if the people would be loyal to the industry of home manufacture, not only those mills that we have in our midst would be running, but there would be established many others. "I believe that in the different parts of this dear State of ours institutions that have been established in the past, if they would only get together now with men of means and get them interested and start them and work for the principle of making what you wear. I believe, my brothers and sisters, that we would create interests much better than we have in the bast.

There is a woolen mill running night and day at Provo to provide people with clothes, and yet 50 per cent of the output of those mills is leaving Utah, while the people of Utah are buying foreign products.

"I suggested to the Commercial club that the natural resources of this and surrounding States be looked into; that some one visit the country to find out; so that we can develop our own resources and not send our means out. We should watch what others are doing wherever we

Nephi Pratt was the first speaker at the afternoon overflow meeting in the Assembly Hall. His speech was an exhortation to young men to speak in the different organizations at home when opportunity should arise, in order to better fit themselves for the missionary field, where they would find it so difficult to speak to audiences not in sympathy with them.

He was followed by German Ellsworth, who told of the advance made by the Mormons in street speaking in Chicago. "We have chosen three corners on which to operate, and now the crowds gather there with the expectation of seeing and hearing us.

"The Dowleites believe very much as we do, they believe in repentance, in haptism for the remission of sins in the Word of Wisdom, and there are several other points of likeness to our religion. Golden Kimball was no doubt the speaker of the afternoon, a ripple of amusement following nearly all of his remarks. In reference to the attacks on the Mormons, he said. "Not long ago a tourist who came to Sait Lake stood in a bed of ants and was severely bitten. He immediately began to swear against the Mormons. Perhaps he thought they were Mormon ants!" At this the congregation was much amused. "We have a great deal of cheap notoriety, but it decen't make any difference to me. There aren't devils enough in hell to destroy this church, and there aren't men enough on earth to do it. I don't care how much evil there is committed in the church, they can't destroy it.

"I have some advice to give to the Catholic, Methodist and Presbyterian churches, but I don't suppose they will accept it, for they never have in the past. They should never receive an apostate from the Church of Latter-day Saints, for if they do it will mean trouble. An apostate Mormon in another church will be an agitator, he will be restless; he will question where they get their authority, and then they would be a long time telling him." This touch pleased the congregation. "He will never be any account to thom. He will not even be satisfied with spiritualism, although he will have a chance to talk to spirits.

"I have also a notice to serve on the Democratic and Republican parties. The Latter-day Saints who fight their own people will, never make good Democratic or good Republicans. They should attek with their own party." This statement seemed approved by the congregation.
"I want to serve a notice on the apostates. Any man who lifts up his voice against us is a coward. I am 6 feet a inches when I feel well-(smiles in the congregation)—and I think it would be cowardly for me to attack a man four feet high. Yet our church has comparatively few members. We are about 200,000 adults, 106,000 children, and I hope there will it 100,000 more added this year. Yet the world of so many more in number attacks us.

In several towns and districts the city or county in question will defray the expenses of the officers who will attend from those places as delogates. Each town has a health officer, and outside districts are taken care of by county health officers. Practically all these communities will be represented.

Gov Wells will deliver an address of welcome this morning. Papers have been assigned on the following subjects: "Smallpox and its Prevention." "Tuberculosis and its Prevention." "School Hygiene." "Food and Berry Supply," "Duty of Local Health Officers." "The General Subject of Preventive Medicines." Secretary of State Hammond has been asked to read a paper on the public health from a legal standpoint, and this will be followed by a discussion, as will be a paper which State Engineer A. F. Doremus has been asked to read on "Water Supply."

Of course this convention, so far as he a paper which State Engineer A. F. Doremus has been asked to read on "Water Supply."

Of course this convention, so far as Utah is concerned, is in the nature of an experiment. Such gatherings in other States have proved of the highest benefit, both to the officials in their work and, ultimately, to the public in the results brought by more unanimous and systematic action on the part of these officials. It is planned that such a convention shall be held each year, that officers shall be elected, and that the organization which will be perfected today will be permanent and active between sessions.

HELD DRAWS A FULL HOUSE.

Initial Sunday Night Concert of Season Well Received.

It must have been gratifying to Hold and his band to note a full house for the first concert at the Grand for the season. The band had passed a busy week with ragtime and fake music of various kinds to sait all the tastes of crowds at the fair and on the streets, and to get down to something meritorious was quite a jump. The change was made successfully, however, and the audience was well pleased. Opening with the new march by our own Arthur Pryor, the band followed with the overture from Leutner's "Festival" and then gave several catchy numbers. The ballet music from "Faust" and the "Awakening of the Lion" were also well played, but what took the best was the medley from "The Office Boy." Young Mackay, the saxaphone player, is going to leave the band and Sait Lake, so he was down for a final number, eaxaphone and flute solos, Mr. Bendixen playing the flute. Miss Emily Larsen sang and her voice shows improvement over last year. first concert at the Grand for the season
